NEWS RELEASE

NATIONAL GALLERY OF ART
WASHINGTON, D. C.

FOR RELEASE: Monday, June 18, 1951

WASHINGTON, June 18: William P. Campbell, Curatorial Assistant of the Worcester Art Museum since November 1, 1949, has been appointed Research Assistant at the National Gallery of Art, Washington, D. C.

A graduate of the Taft School and Yale University, Mr. Campbell is completing work on a Ph.D. degree at Harvard University. During the war he served as a first lieutenant in the Army, working with the British Air Ministry and S.H.A.E.F. in Europe. He is a native of New Haven, Connecticut.

Mr. Campbell's work in Washington will include the cataloging of paintings owned by the National Gallery, a project now being carried on. He will assume his new duties on June 18.
